

INSURERS WARME AGAINST PROXIES

International Policyholders,
Committee Urges Straight Voting.

SAY NEW AGENCY SCHEME

New York Life Officials Said to Be Making Final Canvas for Votes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The international policyholders' committee tonight issued the following statement:

"We requested the superintendent of insurance to furnish us daily the number of ballots cast at the home offices of the companies. This request has been complied with, and these figures have been furnished us covering nine days of the voting. The New York Life officials have now concocted a new scheme in their attempts to withhold the information in connection with the pending election.

Clerks Working Overtime.

"The agency directors have been notified that on and after Monday next they are not to secure ballots but that from that time on they are to confine their efforts to settling proxies. Orders to that effect have been issued by agency directors to the men working under them. Many of the men who ordinarily work in the main office have been assigned to branch offices for the purpose of canvassing for ballots. Many of the clerks in the main office are working overtime until 10 p. m. at $1.50 each verifying the ballots for the use of the administration and not for any official purpose. Many other clerks (principally women) are also working until 10 o'clock at night doing the work of salaried employees who are out canvassing.

Men Sent Soliciting.

"The men whose office hours usually last until 5 o'clock now stop work at 4 o'clock so as to go out canvassing. The large number of ballots collected by the agents are unsealed when taken and are transferred to the branch office from which they are transmitted to the home office by mail.

"Again policyholders are warned not to give proxies to said employees soliciting for the administration ticket, but to vote direct by ballot."

PRINCETON TEAM BEATS CORNELL ON ITS MERIT

25-yard line. A fake kick gained eight yards and then Cornell punted back to midfield. Here was Princeton's opportunity. With one short gain she sent Eddie Dillon on a run around end, when Cornell was unprepared and there were ten Princeton men standing seemingly idle on the line. As Dillon reached the end he stopped, and, hurling the ball across the surprised line of Cornell forwards, placed it directly in the hands of Hogland, who kept on and took the ball to Cornell's 29-yard line before he was downed, a net gain of thirty yards.

Two plays into the line failed to gain. Then Princeton tried a quarterback kick. The ball went right to Jamieson, the Cornell quarterback, but he was not prepared. He failed to stop it and Wistar, trailing on, picked it up and was over the goal line for a touchdown.

The Princeton cohorts were wild, and cheer madly followed cheer until Cooney, carefully sighting the ball in placement, kicked the goal that the crowd thought tied the score.

Ithacans Dangerous Again.

Princeton's rejoicing was short lived, however, for Cornell came right back. Running the kick-off back thirty yards, it punted thirty more into Princeton's territory. Princeton kicked back only fifteen yards, when Cornell, with a forward pass and two short gains, carried the ball to within twenty yards of Princeton's goal. Here it was lost on an alert play by Rulon-Miller, but Princeton failed to gain, and was forced to kick it back to Cornell with a loss of only fifteen yards to the Ithacans.

A forward pass to Van Orman at end gained twenty yards for Cornell, and brought it again within scoring distance, but a short kick to one side lost the ball on the 10-yard line.

Tiger Line Braces Up.

Here on the first play the ball was taken into the line by Princeton and fumbled. Harlan picked it up and was away, splendidly dodging Jamieson, and continued on toward the Cornell goal for a run of 100 yards in length and a touchdown, but the ball was recalled because it had been downed when knocked from the runner's hands and was dead when Harlan secured it. Again Princeton was unable to gain and she kicked to Cornell on the 45-yard line.

The Ithacan attack then got together again. Play after play was directed into the left side of Princeton's line. Walders and Gibson went through for seven and then four yards, and progressed steadily toward the goal. On the 20-yard line it was checked and Cornell elected to try a punt to the field. The kick was gotten away finely from placement, but as it soared toward the posts, it passed just outside the eastern end of the goal and the chance was missed.

On Princeton's kick-out Cornell came back, but as she carried the ball toward the goal line a fumble lost it thirty yards away, but Princeton could not gain and only managed to kick back twelve yards. Twice on fumbles the ball changed hands, and once, on failing to gain, Cornell tried a short kick and regained the ball, but the game ended before they could again approach the line.

STRAUS OF MANY FACES IN NEWSPAPER PICTURES

New Member of Cabinet Seen as Various Men.

The Hon. Oscar S. Straus, soon to become a member of the Presidential Cabinet as head of the Department of Commerce and Labor, used to be a Democrat. Judging by the pictures that have lately appeared, purporting to present his features, he might be all the kinds of a Democrat from G. Cleveland to William R. Hearst.

For Mr. Straus is a gentleman of wonderful variety. He generally has a beard, but even that is not certain. He has been printed as the divorced wife of Major Taggart (the delicate tribute of a Philadelphia paper), and in another he looks like Joseph Bucklin Bishop, former press agent and historian of the Panama canal. Mr. Bishop, that is, with a beard.

One of his portraits—newspaper portraits—makes Mr. Straus look for all the world like Henry George engaged in deep thought incident to developing the single-tax plan of rehabilitating society. This was perpetrated by an Atlanta newspaper.

Twin Brother of Platt.

In Chicago Mr. Straus is variously represented as the twin brother of Senator Platt, and as the counterpart of the chic and youthful Senator Sutherland, who comes from Utah and is attractive enough to have won three or four wives without lying, and yet has the Y. M. C. A. support.

OSCAR STRAUS,
New Secretary of Commerce and Labor, as He Is Various Pictures.

When a Cincinnati newspaper's artist saw Mr. Straus he was opening a steamed oyster. It was a very large one, and he bore an especially animated expression, apparently contemplating the tremendous question of whether, in any circumstances, it will do to cut an oyster in two.

Varied Portraits Insure Welcome.

The various portraits of Mr. Straus give assurance that he will receive a warm welcome when he comes to town to boss Mr. Garfield, Mr. Murray, and the other clever young men at the Bureau of Commerce and Labor. He looks like so many different people that he is certain to be taken for an old friend by half the people on the Avenue.

And it mustn't be overlooked, too, that Mr. Straus once collected a bill of Uncle Sam against the Sultan of Turkey. There are different stories about how it happened, but the belief is general that he thought he was somebody else and gave up without realizing what an unprofessional act he was committing. He has not been known to make the mistake since.

STUDENTS AND POLICE ENGAGE IN MIX-UP

Too much of the victorious Georgetown yell of the George town-Washington and Lee football game yesterday, resulted in a general mix-up between a number of the students and the police last night.

In the mix-up Jerome Plattery, 1331 Q street northwest, was badly bruised about the head and was taken to the hospital, where his wounds were dressed. He was then taken to the police station and released on $10 collateral, for a hearing on the charge of assault and battery, tomorrow morning.

The following were arrested on the charge of disorderly conduct: Jack Hilton, 218 P street; John W. Gaines, 125 G street; James H. Osborn, 1314 K street; Harry K. Lee, 1314 K street. They put up $5 collateral to prevent being detained in the police station till the hearing Monday.

TYPOS IN QUANDARY OVER EVANS' CASE

Foreman of Globe Printing Company In Disfavor With Columbia Union.

A special meeting of Columbia Typographical Union has been called for this afternoon at Typographical Temple in G street northwest, to consider what is understood to be a serious complaint filed against the foreman of the Globe Printing Company.

Foreman Evans, of the Globe Printing Company, formerly was a member of Columbia Typographical Union in good standing, but at the time of the strike last January, failed to come out with the men, and was subsequently dropped from the rolls of the union.

Evans Is Reinstated.

Recently the Globe Printing Company adjusted its differences with the union and all the non-union workmen. Mr. Evans went to Baltimore, secured a union card, and is now in his old position.

"The situation is said to be a remarkable one from a union standpoint, and it is to ascertain what can be done in the case that the special meeting is to be held this afternoon.

"The printers' strike for an eight-hour day, that was inaugurated last January, is said to be making satisfactory progress as the tenth month draws to a close.

Less than half a dozen of the important shops of the city are still resisting the demand for the shorter workday, while only sixty-five of the original strikers remain on the strike roll at headquarters.

Strike Fund Provided.

The union in addition to taking care of the men on strike, also provides a fund from which is paid weekly benefits to members of the union who are unable to obtain work by reason of the strike or other cause. At the present time there are 105 of this class.

With the opening of the fall season the demand for competent workmen is said to be increasing and the union officials are relying on this demand to help them in the fight. It is believed by members of the local union that the eight-hour fight in the city will be completely won before spring comes.

CHAMPION CAKE WALKER HELD FOR SANITY BOARD

Thomas Smith, colored, thirty-eight years old, said to be the champion cake walker of Washington, was arrested last night in a lively stable on Eighth street northwest, and is being held at the First precinct police station pending an investigation into his mental condition.

Smith, it is stated, was acting queerly in the lively stable, and the night watchman decided to turn him over to an officer.

MRS. EDDY DYING, NEW YORK REPORT

Alleged Another Impersonates Her to Advocates of Christian Science.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The World tomorrow will say:
Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, and one of the most remarkable women of her generation, is dying at her home in Concord, N. H., as the result of an incurable cancer.

It will assert that the woman who drives through the streets of Concord daily, and is revered by advocates of the "cult," is not Mrs. Eddy, but a Mrs. Pamela J. Leonard, of Brooklyn, who is the head of the Christian Science Church in that place.

In substantiation of its assertion the World will print an affidavit of a John J. Hennessey, of Brooklyn, who claims to personally know Mrs. Leonard, and who, in his affidavit, identified her as the Brooklyn leader.

TWO OF A KIND.

"I can't imagine any one more foolish than she is. She has simply married him to reform him."

"Well, he's just as foolish. He seems to have married her merely to give her a chance to learn cooking."

MEMORIAL TODAY FOR MRS. DAVIS

United Daughters of Confederacy Have Arranged Appropriate Program.

Song, oratory, poetry, and flowers will pay tribute to the memory of Mrs. Jefferson Davis today at the memorial service to be held under the auspices of the District Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, in Confederate Veterans' hall in the Maryland building, H street northwest, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets. The service will begin at 3 p. m.

The entire Southern contingent of the city has been invited. Camps of Confederate veterans from Washington, Alexandria and Hyattsville, and the entire division of the United Daughters, five chapters in all, will attend in a body. The hall is appropriately draped in the Stars and Bars.

The memorial service is largely due to the incentive of Mrs. Henderson, president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, who ordered memorial services to be held all over the South. The Washington meeting will be presided over by Mrs. John M. Hickey.
